Using Children’s Literature to Teach Writing

Rachel Schwedt, Liberty University
Janice A. DeLong, Liberty University

Publication Date
11-1-2007

Document Type
Conference Presentation

Disciplines
Curriculum and Instruction

Comments

Abstract
Selected titles of children’s literature are shown that can enhance writing instruction. Titles shared cut across content areas and address the writing of letters, journals, non-fiction, poetry, and fables. The following information is given for each title: awards won, themes, writing ideas, and website addresses for further information. The target audience is grades 4-8.

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/lib_fac_pubs/23 writing instruction. Titles shared cut across content areas and address the writing of letters, journals, non-fiction, poetry, and fables. The following information is given for each title: awards won, themes, writing ideas, and website addresses for further information. The target audience is grades 4-8. Citation Information. Rachel Schwedt and Janice A. Delong “Using Children’s Literature to Teach Writing” (2007) Available at: http://works.bepress.com/janice_delong/1/. Copyright 1999–2018 bepress.

Cookies are used by this site. To decline or learn more, visit our cookies page.